

ANLCA opens secretariat

THE Association of Nigerian Licensed Customs Agents (ANLCA) has opened its national secretariat in Lagos.

The N150 million edifice was commissioned by Vice President, Namadi Sambo, who was represented by the Senior Special Assistant to the President on Maritime Services, Mr Leke Oyewole.

The secretariat is named after the Customs Comptroller-General, Alhaji Dikko Inde Abdullahi.

ANLCA also used the occasion to mark its 60th anniversary.

ANLCA President, Prince Olayiwola Shittu, said though the body has a functional secretariat, it opted for a permanent secretariat befitting its status, adding that part of the event was to mark its 60th anniversary and to celebrate the relationship the body has with the Customs as revenue generators for the government.

Dignitaries were Abdullahi and some prominent clearing agents.

Meanwhile, the association has named Chief Henry Njoku as its Chairman, Board of Trustees, Coordinator, Alhaji Taiwo Mustafa, Secretary Prince Taye Oyeniya, Treasurer, Chief Peter Obih and the Vice Chairman, Aare Sanni Shittu.
